October, 1986

Dear HCFD Members:

If you missed our annual gathering last month, we're sorry. It was one of the best! Plans are now afoot for next year's when we'll be celebrating our fifth birthday. Some of the things being mentioned are pioneer dress for the Saturday night program, funnel cakes, and lots more sharing and researching. Plan now to be with us.

"Papers for Joy", my box at the reunion, revealed some interesting things when I finally found time to go through it the other day. Some were so good that I decided to share them with you in this issue. There was Raymond Wolfe's list of many early Lewis County births and the French Morgan article on Bush's Fort. Other items were articles on Pleasant Grove M.P. Church and Pleasant Valley M.E. Church. Both will appear in later issues. I also found a packet of information on the Hughes family and some Swisher things.

We have a couple of projects underway that should interest you.

Bob Smith has saved all of Bill Adler's "Yesteryears" columns from the "Weston Democrat". These articles contain much of interest to the Lewis County researcher. The Executive Board, and a couple of volunteers, spent most of our last meeting copying these and they are now being sent to Betty Hayes in Arizona for indexing. Bill has given permission for us to publish the columns, along with the index, once the project is complete. They will be published in volumes, by year. Look for information on purchasing the first volume in our next issue.

Peggy (Flesher) Strickland of Texas is indexing the Jackson County Historical Society newsletters for us. Again, this publication should be of tremendous help to our members since so many of our early families migrated to Jackson County. No date has been set for completion of this project.

A special thanks to Betty and Peggy for their work.

Betty Butcher Topp of Washington state has given permission for us to use any part of her publications in the Journal. In this issue, we are using her research on the Bush family. It seemed to tie in so nicely with Morgan's Bush's Fort story. She also typed the Harmony Church record manuscript which appears in this issue. Bob Smith obtained these records from someone at the church. A big thanks to both of them for this effort.

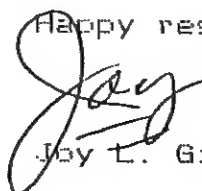

I promised a transcription of the Monongalia tax lists from last issue for this one. However, there just hasn't been enough time to get the job completed. Look for it next issue.

Immediately after our gathering, Lolita Guthrie and friends went on a research trip to western Virginia, western Maryland and eastern West Virginia. Lolita has about 10 pages of notes on researching in these areas which we thought would be useful to all of you. You'll find them included.

Christmas is just around the corner. If there's someone in your family who is also interested in our heritage but hasn't found the time to get really involved, why not give them a membership in HCFD for Christmas. It just might spur them on.

So, have a MERRY CHRISTMAS AND HAPPY NEW YEAR and look for Issue 2 sometime in February. See ya' then.

Happy researching,

Joy L. Gilchrist

The Fifth Annual Hacker's Creek Pioneer Descendants Gathering was held Friday-Sunday, September 5-7, 1986, at Jackson's Mill State 4-H Camp near Jane Lew. Approximately 100 persons participated in the weekend's events. (And what a weekend it was! Everyone said it was the best ever and wondered if we could do it again so well next year.)

The weekend really began on Thursday evening with the arrival of several out-of-staters: Bob and Carol Powell of Cedar Rapids, Iowa; Joyce Chambers of South Bend, IN; Harriet of Anderson, IN; Eleanor, Martha and Ruth Hacker from Zion, IL; Conrad and Ann Line and their two grandsons from Baltimore, MD; Rocky and Patty Swisher from Harrisonburg, VA; Millie Sleeth Hardister from Florida and her niece, Francis Doherty, from Alexandria, VA; and Bill Hayes of North Hollywood, CA, and his mother, Betty, from Tuscon, AZ. Some of the group went to dinner at the truck stop at Jane Lew (one of the best places in the area to eat - and their graham cracker pie is yummy) and then "invaded" Barbara (Swisher) McCarty, her husband Keith, and cousin Ann Davisson Walker for an early "Hello" and some piano playing and singing by Joyce and Patty. (We even caught Ann "doing" her hair. You still looked great, Ann.)

We returned to the lodge at the Mill and Bob Smith came to visit and break the news that Jim Comstock was not going to be there as our Saturday night speaker. Jim called Bob on Monday evening, Labor Day, just four days earlier and said that his secretary had scheduled him for something else at an earlier date and had failed to put it on his (Jim's) calendar. After some discussion about possibilities for a program, it was decided to "let it ride and see what happens".

On Friday morning at 7:30, we gathered for breakfast in the Mt. Vernon dining hall. This meal, as all others during the weekend, was served buffet style. The food, as usual, was good; and, if anyone left the hall hungry, it was their own fault.

By 8:30 we were in the Sewing Center, unloading cars and setting up the library. Some of our local members began to arrive along with others from out-of-state. Excitement was high! A tour of Hacker's Creek was being planned for the afternoon and everyone, including yours truly, was making new discoveries in their research. (All you Straley descendants, with Rocky Swisher's help, I proved that Christina Lantz Straley's father was Bernard Lantz.)

After lunch just about everyone went on the tour. Barbara McCarty stayed behind to greet new arrivals and keep an eye on the library. And, as we were ready to pull out of the drive, Larry and Peggy (Flesher) Strickland from Dallas, TX, arrived and joined us. The tour included the pioneer cemetery and old Wests Fort sites, Mitchell Cemetery and Hughes cabin site, Bonnetts/Lifes Run, Hacker homestead, Bloody Run and the Hinzman log house, Cozad pear tree and Jacob Cozad's cabin site (Bob Smith had recently learned the exact location of the Cozad cabin) Berlin U.M. Church, Laural Lick and Jesse's Run. We returned to the Mill at 5:45, just in time for a delicious supper that the cooks had delayed till 6:00 pm at our request.

Friday night there was more researching and exchanging thoughts and ideas. A brief evening program had been planned but was scrapped when everyone seemed like they'd rather be doing just what they were doing - organized confusion, Bob Smith called it.

Saturday am was about the same as Friday - except we had a few more people for breakfast.

MINUTES

By 9:30 the Center was beginning to fill and at 10:00 Bob Smith, president, called the morning session to order.

He introduced the officers, welcomed everyone, told of the building plans for the mill (see last issue) and appointed the nominating committee. Lolita Guthrie explained that the Journal and index were not ready but would be out in a couple of weeks. She reminded us that the publication of the Journal was strictly a volunteer effort and that since Bowling Green University does the printing for us (at a considerably reduced cost) we must wait on their schedule for printing. Joy asked everyone to continue sending in materials for publication. Bob explained that the Executive Board had decided that because of the volunteer effort and because all of the volunteers worked at other jobs the Journal will be published Spring, Summer, Fall and Winter with no specific month for publication.

Lolita told us about The Association for Gravestone Studies and explained about their newsletter and interest in cemetery and tombstone preservation. It was decided that HCPD should become a member of the organization.

Bob told us that our efforts to preserve and care for Morrison Cemetery were continuing. He said that Bill Hayes is organizing the Mitchell descendants for contributions for care of the Mitchell Cemetery and that $100 has already been pledged for the effort.

Bob explained that HCPD is considered by the "powers that be" in Lewis County as the only active Lewis County historical group and that, although we are primarily concerned with the Hacker's Creek area, our interests are rapidly expanding to cover all of Lewis County. The group decided that although we are concerned with the whole county that we should never change our name to reflect these interests.

Joy explained that the Executive Board had decided to trade in our old copier for a new one - and that Main Office Supply in Coshocton, Ohio, had agreed to give us our full purchase price back on the old one. The new copier was used the whole weekend and produced fantastic copies - about 2000 of them.

We adjourned for lunch and reconvened in the afternoon for election of officers and the annual business meeting.

Slate of officers as presented by the nominating committee and elected unanimously for two year terms were:

President: Barbara Swisher McCarty
Vice President: Ed "Bud" Allman
Secretary-Treasurer: Raydene Teicheira
Editor-Archivist-Historian: Joy Gilchrist
Executive Committee: Maurice Allman and Bob Smith

Barbara and Raydene live at Jane Lew, Bud at Clarksburg, Maurice at Philippi, Bob at Lost Creek and Joy at West Lafayette, OH.

The budget for 1987 was presented.

Joy said that Dennis Rodgers was awaiting the final figures for 1986 before completing the application for tax-exempt and charitable organization status. She announced that John Law had agreed to assist Ann Walker with the compilation of the necessary figures and that they hoped to complete them before the weekend was over.

Bob explained that Jim Comstock would not be present but that there would be a Saturday night program and invited everyone to stay and enjoy themselves.

The meeting adjourned.

During the meeting, I'd had a "brilliant" idea about our Saturday night program. I asked Bob to let me narrate because he was going to participate. He said, "Okay!" and I started getting organized. Once this was completed, Ann, John and I started working on the papers for IRS and our tax-exempt status. We all-but-finished this when it was time for supper; we decided to complete them on Sunday.

About 7:30 we reconvened in the Sewing Center. The room was full and we had to bring in extra chairs!!!!

SATURDAY NIGHT PROGRAM - "Where We Came From and Where are We Going"

Joy welcomed all of our members and guests and explained that, although Jim Comstock was unable to attend, there would be a program. She asked everyone to stand for the Pledge to the Flag and to remain standing for a prayer by Maurice Allman.

Maurice offered thanks for allowing all of us to be present, asked Him to guide us through the coming year and to take us all safely home to return again next year.

Joy asked everyone to pretend that they were kids in school and listen to our teacher, Joyce Chambers, while she read "The Pringle Tree", a children's book she had found in the Jackson's Mill Gift Shop. Joyce ended her story with pictures of the Pringle tree that she had taken in 1985.

Our narrator explained that during the next one hundred years (from 1768-1769), our ancestors fought for our country, struggled to survive in the wilderness and brought religion over the Alleghenies. In honor of this struggle, she introduced the "Beulahland Express" with a program of gospel music and explained that most of the singers were descendants of early Hacker's Creek pioneers and preachers. "Beulahland" left chills and good feelings with all who heard them.

At the completing of their performance, Maj. David H. Smith (as portrayed by Robert B. Smith) was introduced. He presented his Centennial speech of 1876 (as published in last issue of the Journal).

Maj. Smith was dressed in a beaver hat and velvet tie that had belonged to Hugh Law, an early Hacker's Creek resident. The hat and tie were loaned by Maurice Allman and the Hacker sisters had repaired the tie so Bob could wear it.

Bob received a big round of applause for his performance.

The narrator said that about 110 years have passed since Maj. Smith's speech. During that time, our ancestors lived and died, laughed and cried. Our men have fought in wars in Europe, Mexico, the South Pacific, Vietnam and Korea. Maj. Smith referred to messages sent from across the country in just a few minutes. Today, we have men on the moon and messages sent in seconds. Some of us remained here in the West Virginia hills, while others scattered to places like Washington state, Iowa, Arizona, Ohio, Maryland, Florida, Maine, and California. Most of us were just plain, ordinary, everyday citizens while others went on to become celebrities.

She then presented "our own Bill Hayes" to lead us in a community sing. Bill played "chink-chink" piano and led us in such songs as "Down By the Old Mill Stream", "Battle Hymn of the Republic", and many more. He ended the songfest with "God Bless America".

Without another word being said, Charles Gilchrist read this poem from Judge J. C. McWhorter's speech at the Centennial celebration of "Old Harmony Church" on Hacker's Creek, Lewis County, Sunday, July 27, 1919:

When the Spring-time touch is lightest,
When the Summer-eyes are brightest,
Or the Autumn sings most drear;
When the Winter's hair is whitest,
Sleep, old pioneer!
Safe beneath the sheltering soil,
Late enough you crept:
You were weary of the toil
Long before you slept.
Well you paid for every blessing,
Bought with grief each day of cheer:
Nature's arms around you pressing,
Nature's lips your brow caressing,
Sleep, old pioneer!

When the hill of toil was steepest,
When the forest-frown was depest,
Poor, but young, you hastened here;
Came where solid hope was cheapest-
Came-a pioneer.
Made the western Jungles view
Civilization's charms;
Snatched a home for yours and you
From the lean tree-arms.
Toil had never cause to doubt you,
Progress' path you helped to clear!
But To-day forgets about you,
And the world rides on without you-
Sleep, old pioneer!

Careless crowds go daily past you,
Where their future fate has cast you,
Leaving not a sigh or tear;
And your wonder-works outlast you-
Brave old pioneer!
Little care the selfish throng
Where your heart is hid,
Though they thrive upon the strong,
Resolute work it did,
But our memory-eyes have found you,
And we hold you grandly dear!
With no work-day woes to wound you-
With the peace of God around you-
Sleep, old pioneer!

* GOD BLESS YOU ALL. GOOD NIGHT.

Folks stayed around for several hours after the program began researching and exchanging. The building stayed open until about eleven.

Several of us gathered later in our rooms at the lodge and shared a graham cracker pie from the Quik-Stop.

After breakfast Sunday morning, we went to Berlin United Methodist Church for church. The preacher, Rev. Sheldon Workman, is of the old school and his words permitted no one to become bored. Joyce Chambers provided some of her beautiful piano music for the worship service.

After church, we returned to the Mill and Sunday dinner. Most everyone was on their way home afterward, but a few diehards stuck around and did some more researching and Ann, John and Joy finished the papers for IRS.

Good-byes were said.

MISSING

It's become almost S.O.P. to publish a list of missing books after our annual meeting. Although we have our names in our books, so many of us share that things easily become mixed. This year it's Bob Smith whose books are missing. Check your books for the following titles: Paletines to America, Volumes I and II; Bonnetts and Kin for 1982, 83, 84 and 85; the Davis Family book - a large bound volume by Susie Davis Nicholson; and Hacker Family Genealogy which is a book of Hacker family group sheets. If you have them, please let Bob know.

Henry McWhorter—The Pioneer

Henry McWhorter, the pioneer, was born in New Jersey, Nov. 13, 1760, and when called into service during the Revolution he was living in Orange County, New York with his mother.

The father having died, the mother was left with six small sons to care for. Being in straitened circumstances the children were bound out. Henry was apprenticed to a millwright, and became skilled in that following.

At the age of 16 he enlisted as a private in the Revolution and served his country 22 months. He had at least two brothers who served in the same regiment with him.

On Aug. 1, 1783 Henry McWhorter was married in Bucks County, Pennsylvania to Mary Fields, a daughter of M. Walter Fields. They resided in Pennsylvania for a time, then, with their two small sons, came to Virginia (now West Virginia) and settled. Here a third son was born.

At the time of his death, M. Walter Fields was living with his son-in-law and daughter at McWhorter's Mill. He was 89 years of age when called by death, and is buried in the Harmony Cemetery about two miles above Jane Lew.

On the headstone we read: M. Walter Fields, died Jan. 20, 1823—Aged 89 years.

Henry McWhorter erected his cabin on the banks of Hacker's Creek, and here were reared the three sons of this pioneer couple. A mill was erected on the creek near his cabin home. It was the first mill built in what is now Lewis and Braxton counties, and for many years was the most accessible mill to the Buckhannon settlement.

No one ever left the McWhorter mill hungry. One year there was a shortage of crops throughout the settlement, and people from Clarksburg and other points came to buy corn.

Some Clarksburg parties offered 50 cents, then 75 cents, then $1.00 a bushel for all the corn he had stored in his mill. The old pioneer refused all offers saying if he let the corn go, his neighbors would suffer. He kept the grain and let the needy settlers have it in exchange for labor at the rate of 25 cents a bushel, for in those days money was scarce.

For 60 years Henry McWhorter was a member of the Methodist Church, and 50 years of the time he was a class leader. Very often the services were held in his home, as there was no church there at that time.

Henry McWhorter was one of the appointed trustees for Weston when that place was established a town in 1818. He died Feb. 4, 1848 and is buried in the McWhorter Cemetery by the side of his wife who preceded him some 14 years earlier.

The Pioneer Home of Henry and Mary McWhorter

Back in the late 1780's a young man, with his wife and two small sons, crossed the mountains from Pennsylvania and settled in the wilds of what is now West Virginia where about 1786 he built their cabin home, and here was born their third son.

This cabin was much better than the average pioneer cabin of that day, being built of hewn logs and having a substantial wooden floor. The windows, too, had small panes of glass instead of the customary greased paper.

The immense chimney of stones and clay was constructed inside the cabin as a precautionary measure against the attacks of Indians. It took in the greater part of one end of the cabin. In the great fireplace were placed the large irons called dogirons upon which rested the huge back logs.

An iron crane was swung from the center of the fireplace upon which hung the immense iron pot. In this most of the cooking was done. The baking was done in a sort of heavy iron pot set in the hot ashes, with more hot ashes placed upon the heavy lid.

In this was baked the corn pone, which, in the early days was the main bread of the pioneers; sometimes the pone was made into flat cakes and baked on large flat stones heated in the ashes.

Since there were no matches to be had in the early days, the fire was made by striking flint to let the sparks fly on to tow, or by rubbing together two sticks rapidly to generate heat enough to produce fire. As this was a pretty hard task, it was necessary to keep the fire from going out as long as possible.

Sometimes one had to go to a neighbor's cabin, perhaps a mile away, to borrow a shovel of hot coals or ashes to start the fire again. The only floor covering, if any, was rugs woven by the mother, or perhaps the floor was sanded.

All the clothing of the family, too, was made by the mother who carded the wool, spun it into yarn, then she would weave or knit it into garments for the family. Hers was no easy task, but she faced it bravely and uncomplainingly and did her share in making life for us easier and fuller.

On the right side of the huge chimney was the built-in cupboard, and here were kept the few dishes and cooking utensils carried across the mountains from the old home. On the left side of the chimney was a stairway leading to the upper room where the family had their sleeping quarters.

On one side of this upper room were two small windows, not more than a foot square, through which the inmates could fire at the Indians should they come too near. It was here this pioneer couple reared their three sons. The boys grew to manhood; two of them married and raised large families.

The youngest son remained in the home with his parents, and here were born his first two children. When he finally went into a home of his own he left his elder child, a son, with his parents. This child was named Fields—his grandmother's maiden name—he, too, was married here and his first child, Joseph Marcellus, was born in the cabin home. So three generations first saw the light of day in this home.

For some forty years this pioneer couple lived in this, their cabin home. In the days gone by the children were taught to read and write in this cabin home, and as there was no church near, being a godly man, this pioneer had services held in his home. From miles around the people would come to this home to hold services and to worship God.

By 1829 a little village had grown up around this mill and home, and the government honored it with a Post Office, called in honor of the old pioneer settler, "McWhorter's Mill." The grandson, Fields McWhorter, was commissioned the first postmaster. So this cabin has been used as a home, school, church, and post office.

"McWhorter's Mill" remained the name of the little village until between 1846 and 1848 when it was renamed "Jane Lew." And Jane Lew it remains to this day. It has the honor of being the only town of that name in the world.

In 1833 the pioneer and his good wife sold the home and mill to Edward Jackson (a cousin of the Confederate General, "Stonewall Jackson," as he is known in history) and went to live in another home some two miles away.

The cabin remained in the Jackson family for many years, and in time became the property of Mrs. Walter Neely, a descendant, who in 1927 decided to remodel or tear down the old cabin so as to build a home for her son, who had recently married.

She finally decided to turn the cabin back into the hands of the descendants of the original owner and builder, on condition that the cabin be removed and preserved. It had become as dear to her as it was to us.

Removal and Preservation of the McWhorter Cabin

When I came to Jane Lew, in 1926, to make my home, I was much interested in the old cabin home of our ancestors. It was located on the property of the Neely family. Their son had recently married and Mrs. Neely contemplated remodeling or tearing down the cabin and rebuilding on the site a home for her son.

The cabin was as dear to her as it was to us, as it went into her family when it left ours. And she had gone to housekeeping there when she was first married. So when she came to me and offered to give back into the McWhorter family the cabin, provided we would remove and preserve it, I was more than delighted.

I at once went to see cousin Jack McWhorter, and wanted to know what he thought of it. He said it could not be done, and cast a damper upon the whole scheme. I wasn't disheartened, however. My idea was for as many of the descendants of our pioneer ancestor as possible to contribute in small amounts, so that we could all say, "This is our cabin, built by our ancestor, and preserved by us, their descendants."

Just at this time I had to make a trip to the west, so I left Jane Lew for Oklahoma. When I returned the following June, I was astounded when I learned that cousin Jack had written letters to five or six prominent McWhorters requesting contributions of $100 each to remove and preserve the cabin.

It so happened these McWhorters knew of my plans, and refused to comply with his request without first seeing me. And so his project fell through. I then undertook to carry through my plans. I went to work in earnest.

After two months of hard work, writing hundreds of letters, and walking many, many miles, contacting as many of the descendants of Henry McWhorter as I could, I collected something over $600 from over 500 of the descendants of the pioneer couple.

Each one I approached responded generously and loyally. I asked for any amount up to $10. L. E. McWhorter of Charleston gave me $65 for himself, his family and his grandchildren. That was the largest contribution; others were from $10 down to five cents, contributed by a little boy in Cincinnati.

Well, the cabin was removed. It was carefully taken down log by log and stone by stone and was reconstructed at Jackson's Mill—the home of W. Va.'s 4-H Camp. By August 14, 1927 everything was ready for the dedicatory service.

In spite of inclement weather—for it rained hard almost the entire day—some 400 descendants of the pioneer couple were present. Twelve states and Washington, D. C., were represented.

The presentation of the cabin to the McWhorter family was to have been made by Mrs. Neely, but owing to a death in her family that morning she could not be present, so she sent her little twin daughters to represent her. They did the honors beautifully.

They presented the cabin to the McWhorter family; it was accepted by Minnie S. McWhorter in a few well chosen words. Then J. Scott McWhorter presented it to the State. It was accepted by Mr. Kendricks, who was at the head of the 4-H Camp at the time.

After 150 years this pioneer cabin is still in a fine state of preservation and good for as many years more. And there today may be seen the cabin home of the pioneer Henry McWhorter, where it is to serve the generations of the future as it served this pioneer family in the past.

It is a monument of the past to let the youth of today see and know how their pioneer ancestors lived and struggled to make possible easier living for their descendants of today.

It was the intention to hold the dedicatory service in the open, near the cabin, but owing to the stormy weather it was held in the Assembly Hall of the Camp. An interesting program was rendered which included the presentation of the cabin to the State, and its acceptance by Mr. Kendricks.

After all the preliminaries pertaining to the cabin were over, the McWhorters organized as a clan, and arranged to have a FAMILY REUNION each year. Carlton McWhorter was elected President; Lora Morrison, Secretary and Treasurer; Minnie McWhorter, Corresponding Secretary; Leni Jenkins, Parliamentarian.

We decided on the fourth Sunday in July as the time, and the McW. Church, in McWhorter as the place of meeting. It is there where so many of our clan have lived, and where, in the cemetery, so many are today sleeping.

So at last, after all these years, the ambition of my early childhood was realized, and we have a reunion. Now, I think I can pass into the Great Beyond, when the call comes to me, with a feeling of satisfaction that the McW. family will carry on, and will become better acquainted with each other through these reunions.

And the children of future generations will not have to depend upon Ministers' and Presiding Elders' families for entertainment. They can have family gatherings of their own where aunts, uncles, cousins, and even grandparents can meet and enjoy each others company, for they have a family of which to be proud.

Cummins Jackson House

Jackson's Mill was the boyhood home of General Thomas "Stonewall" Jackson. His grandparents, Edward and Elizabeth (Brake) Jackson, settled on a bend in the West Fork River in 1801. They constructed a log cabin and, about 1806, a log grist mill on the east side (outside of the bend) of the river. (1) Mills were important to the frontier economy and Jackson's mill was a success.

Edward died in 1828 and was buried in the Jackson family cemetery. His son, Cummins, who was born in 1802, inherited the best part of his estate, including several slaves, 5 horses, 13 head of cattle, the grist mill, a sash (saw) mill, a blacksmith shop, a store and 4,021 acres of property. Cummins, as a boy, had worked at, and at times ran, the family's gristmill. He learned his trade well and recognized that the powerful current of the West Fork would destroy the grist mill. He rebuilt the mill on the river's west bank, on the inside of the bend. In the new construction, he used only the machinery and foundation timbers from Edward's mill and constructed the rest from hand-hewn timbers and boards produced at the sawmill.

Within a few years, the new mill burned. Undaunted, Cummins reconstructed the mill with a foundation of native stone.

The 2 1/2 story building, forty feet square, constructed of lumber produced at the sawmill and powered by two horizontal water wheels situated beneath the first floor, still stands today and is used as a museum. It, along with the rest of the mill property, is governed by the Board of Regents of West Virginia University and is the focal point of the 4-H Camp constructed in 1926.

In 1830, Cummins' nephew, six year old Thomas Jackson, born in Clarksburg across the street from the present-day courthouse in 1824, came to live with Cummins and his mother (Thomas' grandmother), Elizabeth (Brake) Jackson, after the deaths of his parents, John and Julia Jackson. Here Thomas was raised by his uncle and grandmother (until her death in 1835) until, at age 18, he left Jackson's Mill for West Point Military Academy. Thomas graduated from West Point in 1846 and served as an officer in the War with Mexico. He was recognized for his heroic conduct and, after several military assignments, became Professor of Artillery Tactics and Natural Philosophy at Virginia Military Institute in 1851. He left VMI in charge of a unit of Cadets at the opening of the Civil War on 21 April 1861.

Thomas went on to become one of the greatest military geniuses the world has ever known. He earned the nick-name "Stonewall" because of his brave and unflinching stand in the face of overwhelming odds at the first battle of Bull Run.

"Stonewall" Jackson became Robert E. Lee's most trusted and valuable general. "Stonewall" was fatally wounded following the battle of Chancellorsville in 1863 and is buried in Lexington, Virginia.

During his time with Cummins, Thomas was placed in charge of Cummins' large timbering operation which played a significant role in the growth of the region. The sawmill was the first in the area and, for a time, its only source of lumber. It produced the boards for the construction in the immediate area as well as many of the frame buildings in Weston.

Between 1842 and 1848, Cummins built a large two-story frame house on a knoll just a few hundred feet west of the mill. It was near the present site of the McWhorter Cabin. The house, essentially L-shaped, with no porch, had a large central doorway and nine windows on the east side and similar windows and an off-center door on the west. It had a shingle roof and chimneys on the north and west ends. The house had a basement. There were two large rooms and a kitchen and pantry downstairs and four bedrooms upstairs.

The Jackson family was active in the area political life and the farm and mill were gathering points for area residents.

Cummins could have remained on the farm as a "gentleman farmer". However, in 1848, hearing of the California Gold Rush, he left his mill, business and friends behind and headed west. He was 47 years old.

His trip ended in tragedy when he contracted a fever and died within a few months. His estate was in limbo for nearly 20 years because he left no recorded will.

Cummins' eldest sister, Catherine Jackson White, eventually became the owner of the mill property and house. At her death, it was purchased by William and Huldah Moxley, who lived in the house for some years, but failed to make the final payments on the property. It was repossessed and sold to Joseph Clifton, a miller from Weston. He began renovation of the property but only lived for four years after purchasing it. It passed on to his wife and, eventually, to his daughter who acted as an absentee owner. She rented the house to various tenants and, in 1913, sold both house and property to A.T. Watson. Watson transferred it to the Monongahela Valley Traction Company which drilled many gas wells on the property. On 3 December 1915, the house burned beyond repair. (2)

In 1927, the Henry McWhorter cabin was moved to Jackson's Mill. The cabin originally stood in Jane Lew not far from the present-day fire station where at one time stood Beech Fort (later called Wests Fort). (See article below for further information on McWhorter family and the cabin.)

Jackson's Mill has undergone many changes during the past 175 years. It was turned into a 4-H Camp in the 1920's and stone and frame buildings were erected for various purposes and include cottages for use as dormitories, the Mt. Vernon style dining hall, the W. Va. Building, and many others. Today, the Jackson's Mill Restoration Committee, is reconstructing a saw mill and has many additional plans for the site.

While it is no longer a working mill and gathering place for just the local folk, it has become a gathering place for HCPD and for many thousands of folks from, not only West Virginia, but from all over the country, each year.

Youngsters attend 4-H camp and men and women attend various conventions and retreats. And, HCPD looks forward to returning the Mill again and again and again.

HENRY MC WHORTER - THE PIONEER

The editor's best source of information on Henry McWhorter and the McWhorter cabin is HISTORY OF THE HENRY MC WHORTER FAMILY OF NEW JERSEY AND WEST VIRGINIA by Minnie S. McWhorter (1948, Charleston Printing Company, Charleston, WV). The editor could not improve upon it from any personal knowledge and, therefore, chooses to reprint it here just as Minnie wrote it on pages 3-9 of her book.

VA / WVa QUERIES

DO YOU HAVE ANCESTORS IN THESE STATES ?

HAVE YOU HAD TROUBLE WITH THEIR RESEARCH ?

VIRGINIA/WEST VIRGINIA QUERIES is a new concept of publications that are designed to help all those who have ancestors in special areas. Queries are one of our most important tools to use in research. DO YOU USE QUERIES AS OFTEN AS YOU SHOULD? WOULD YOU LIKE TO FIND OTHERS RESEARCHING THE SAME FAMILY LINES? LET'S HELP EACH OTHER!!

VA/WVA RELATED QUERIES MAY BE SUBMITTED FREE!!! Because I feel so strongly about the importance of queries, you may submit as many queries as you wish and also as often as you wish. "VIRGINIA/WEST VIRGINIA QUERIES" will be published on an irregular basis. When enough queries are received, another issue will be then published. Each issue will contain at least twenty-five [25] pages plus the all-important every name index.

VA/WVA QUERIES accepts material for review that is VA/WVA related. These may be genealogies/periodicals/newsletters, etc. When material is submitted for review by the editor, the submitter will receive a copy of the issue of VIRGINIA/WEST VIRGINIA QUERIES in which the review is first published. Thereafter a list of material reviewed will be printed in each successive issue. When sending your review material, please do not that it is for review, being sure to include all ordering information, such as cost, including tax if any; postage, handling, etc.

Please follow these guidelines when submitting queries:

- 1 - PLEASE PRINT OR TYPE YOUR QUERIES.
- 2 - QUERIES SHOULD BE NOT MORE THAN FIFTY [50] WORDS. Name and address may be in addition to your query.
- 3 - PLEASE DO NOT ABBREVIATE YOUR QUERY. Editor reserves right to edit queries when space is at a minimum and hold any or all queries over to a future issue.

If you have a VA/WVA related book/publication, etc., that you no longer need, do send me information on them, including their condition. It may be possible that we can make some type of exchange arrangement. Any donated material will of course, be very welcome and appreciated.

Each issue of VIRGINIA/WEST VIRGINIA QUERIES will be priced at $5.00 plus postage/handling costs of $1.00 for 1-3 issues. WA. residents please add 7.8% state tax.

Bush's Fort--Buckhannon's

First Settlement

by French MORGAN

July, 1966

It is not known how long John Bush lived at the fort site after 1785, to whom he sold, or who came into possession of his farm. An examination of land records at Clarksburg would doubtless reveal the facts.

Outright recorded that Bush moved to Freeman's Creek in Lewis county, and was killed there by Indians in 1791, along with two children. McWhorter states this is in error since it was another John Bush that located in that area. The writer is inclined to accept this latter statement; John Bush who settled there in 1773, had a son George, old enough to locate land in his own right in 1772, his land being farther down the river. By 1791 George Bush would have been forty to forty-five years old, indicating his father would have no young children in 1701. This is mere opinion.

The writer has determined that John Bush had at least two children, a boy and a girl. His daughter Sarah married Abram Cutright, and had three known children, Enoch, Asby B. and Dr. D. M. No doubt many descendants of this daughter now reside in Upshur County. John Bush's son George had a son Jacob who had a son Nathaniel, who married Martha Jackson, daughter of Jacob J. son of John, Jr., son of John, Sr., the first Jackson to come to this area. Nathaniel Bush had a son, Charles M., born 1860, and died in Buckhannon in 1926.

He was born at Gaston, Lewis county, and purchased property in Buckhannon in 1913. He was a member of the now Central Methodist Church, and the writer knew him well. He had no children. There was not a Bush living in Upshur at the time of the first census taken in 1860, and since that time county records list the name but twice, indicating the family is almost, if not entirely extinct in Upshur county.

The writer can add a finale to the Bush epic in Upshur as told him by Mrs. Charles M. Bush some years after she became a widow. The husband of a young woman died in Buckhannon leaving his widow with two or more young children to support, one of them being an infant. Being poor, it was necessary for the woman to make her way by house work for the neighbors. Mrs. Bush felt sorry for the woman and generally gave her something to do. However, on one visit when there was nothing to be done, Mrs. Bush gave her a quarter, which was considerable for her, being a poor woman herself. The next time the lady showed up she was most profuse in her thanks for the quarter, stating that she had run out of snuff and had not had a rub for a week, and that Mrs. Bush had saved her life, almost, by the gift. To prevent it happening again, she told Mrs. Bush she spent the whole quarter for snuff. It was more than Mrs. Bush could take. She thought of the babies going without milk, and that she could not afford such extravagance for herself, so hardened her heart that she never again assisted the woman.

The foregoing is all the recorded history the writer has been able to locate concerning Bush's Fort that served the Buckhannon community from 1774 to 1782, a period of eight years. Most events were recorded by Withers in Chronicles of Border Warfare and largely copied by other writers. Scattered here and there on the 400 pages of the book, the full story is slow in materializing. W. B. Outright in the History of Upshur County, borrowed this material from Withers and added a little to it. Then in 1915 L. V. McWhorter came out with Border Settlers, again repeating Withers and adding new material.

The purpose of this article is to collect under one head all known facts, weeding out those statements based entirely on tradition, and add what little may be deduced in the process. McWhorter did a wonderful lot of research work for which the historian should be thankful. The long record gives an insight into the character of the leaders and principal actors who founded Upshur county, but when it comes to the spies and protectors of the border, McWhorter boils it down in the closing paragraph of Chapter IX of Border Settlers.

"Christopher Cutright (son of John Cutright, Jr., the scout) when interviewed by me (L. V. McWhorter) in connection with the deeds of his father and associates, said: 'When William White and Jesse Hughes went on an Indian killing they killed all with whom they came in contact, not even sparing women and children.' When asked which of these two noted scouts was the most desperate and cruel in his forays against the Indians, came the laconic reply; 'It was about buck up.' 'And,' mused the old man, 'My father was about as bad as they were, and Samuel Pringle, of Sycamore tree, was scarce better.' "

That describes one type of pioneer, the illiterate; but there was another class as represented by the Jackson family and others. John Jackson Sr., and his sons John Jr., George, Edward, were leaders in other fields than scouts and hunters. In particular, Edward Jackson was Captain of Militia in 1787, also County Surveyor during the same period. He became a Justice during that year, an office he held for some time.

Regardless of position and standing in the community, our pioneers had foibles and peculiarities, even as their descendants at the present time. History is generally silent in this respect, as in other attributes, but court records for Randolph county for the March 1780 term, gives one peep behind the scenes, showing peace and pleasantness did not always prevail at that time among the "worshipful" Justices, and that the early settlers had troubles other than Indian raids.

We are told that Edward Jackson went before the grand jury and had his colleague Robert Maxwell indicted for being drunk, whereupon Maxwell gave information to the Grand Jury that resulted in Jackson being indicted for the same offense. Jackson confessed, the record shows, but Maxwell stood trial and was acquitted. All of which seems not to have impaired Jackson's standing in the community, for two years later 1792, he was elected Sheriff of Randolph county which county Upshur was embraced at that time.

Bush Fort

No doubt much took place at Bush's Fort that was not chronicled by the historian, overlooked or thought unimportant, with the result that the record is almost blank. As disappointing as this is, it is more so when it comes to the Fort itself, for that record is absolutely blank — not a word concerning it or its construction, or its location other than it was on the Buckhammon river, and was erected some time during 1774, a footnote merely mentioning that a fort was erected. Therefore everything that follows is pure conjecture based on conditions of the time and a few physical features visible to the past generation, but now as departed as the fort building itself.

One naturally wonders how large the building was and what it looked like. It was undoubtedly built of logs, probably round logs with the cracks chinked with clay, small stones or poles. On page 167 of Cutright's History of Upshur Co. is shown a pen sketch of the supposed appearance of Bush's Fort a small two-story log structure, not over 15 by 20 feet, is: "Built in reply to the many letters of Major General Connolly proxy of Earl of Dunmore, sent out in 1774 to build and retire into forts as the Indians are mad."

That picture does not coincide with the idea of the writer as to construction and size of the fort, nor does it agree with the ideas of L. V. McWhorter, who thought it might be a family residence, but built larger and more substantial to repel Indian attack. There is no record of the fort ever having been attacked, although one appears to have been in the offing when it was deserted and later burned.

When the first census was taken in 1785 by Edward Jackson, in compliance with a court order, thirteen families were listed as living in the area bounded by Cutright Run on the south, the Pringle Tree on the north, and Lorentz on the west. There were probably no more families here during the period 1774-1782. The census did not take into account the number of women and children, so the total population is not known. But the John Schoolcraft family had ten children, making twelve in that one family, and if other families averaged three or four to the family, it can be seen that the fort, to be effective, would have had to be large enough to accommodate around fifty persons, if all repaid to it at one time. That would indicate a rather large building, even for cramped quarters. Therefore, it may be assumed the building was two story as pictured by Cutright.

It has been said this was stockade fort, the enclosure covering a half acre or more of ground. Some say the stockade was built when the fort was erected. Others say it was built during 1777 or 1778, during warfare, when a second warning was sent to outlying posts to strengthen their defenses. Be that as it may, here is no evidence whatever to substantiate the claim that the fort had a stockade, though we may assume it had. A spring or well supplied water for the fort, and if there was a stockade, the spring was within it. The fort was also served by a stone outhouse or storehouse, said to measure 14 by 20 feet, stated to be about 28 feet distant from the fort, but in what direction the historian failed to state. It is not known what service this building afforded, and McWhorter does not know whether it was within the stockade wall, or not, but it appears reasonable to him that it should have been.

All evidence of the fort disappeared a hundred years ago but the ruins of the stone building remained much longer. In passing, the writer will point out that there is no evidence to show this stone building was associated with the fort; in fact, it may have been the residence of John Bush, for it must be remembered that in 1784 George Jackson was living in a stone house on what is now Island Avenue at the eastern approach of town. The writer has not attempted to learn who owned the fort site from 1785 to 1815, but in the later year George Jackson, who then lived in Clarksburg, sold 400 acres to Nicholas Heavner, who built a two-story log house near the fort site in 1816, the year Buckhannon was founded. His son Elias, who built the three-story front to the Valley House Hotel in 1868, then occupied the place, his son, Major Jacob Heavner, later owning it. It is reported that the Major hauled away 150 wagon loads of stone from the fort site, and it was not known how much was removed prior to that time.

The great amount of stone was a puzzle to L. V. McWhorter, who could not account for it unless a large stone chimney covered each end of the house, which material added to stone used for the foundation and chinking, and the storage building explained it. The building of the fort and the stone outbuilding indicates quite a labor problem with tools then in use, so it is reasonable to suppose it was not a one-man job, but a community or "log rolling" proposition. While the building was a community affair, it was erected on the farm of John Bush, which accounts for the name, Bush Fort, otherwise Buckhannon Fort.

The next question that comes to mind is, just where was the fort located on the farm. The past generation knew the answer to that question, and the writer could have known had he been interested in such thing when a young man. The only record at hand is given by McWhorter in Border Settlers and he was on the ground when remains of the stone outbuilding were still in evidence. He states the fort stood on a slight eminence on a flat on the north side of the valley about 275 paces from a point on the river where Col. George Jackson's Mill was located. McWhorter displayed two pictures taken by Miss Jo McAvoy in 1909, taken from the supposed fort site, and another showing the spot where Capt. White was shot, in relation to the fort site.

From the physical aspects of the landscape, compared with those in the pictures it is an easy matter to determine the exact spot where the photographer stood when the pictures were snapped. Using these three pictures as a base, the writer made a careful survey and measurement to determine the following facts.

Fort Location

At the point on the Post Mill road where the Bush Fort marker is placed, there is a driveway turning squarely off to the right to lead through the outer boundary of the new cemetery on the right side of the road. This driveway completely encircles Little Indian Knob. At the highest point on this driveway, just before it dips over to the first down grade, about 50 feet to the left (north), just 300 feet from the Fort marker at the foot of Big Indian Knob, in the distant foreground, is where McWhorter placed the Fort, in a rectangular tract measured roughly by the grave stones of the Percy Gould, Ward - Thrash, Wilson C. Hefner and the James Lake Ellis families.

The spring was 150 feet due north from this point, at the base of Little Indian Knob, nothing now to indicate its existence other than a green spot in the grass of the slight depression. Grave markers of the Swisher-Brown families mark the spot. The spring was tile drained a number of years ago to empty in a drain heading just above the fort marker, and flowing south just east of it to empty into the Buckhannon river south of the old part of the cemetery. The gully is being presently filled and within a few years that marker will also have disappeared.

The stone outbuilding, erected for whatever purpose, was 28 feet southwest of the spring, according to McWhorter. That would place it near the drain or overflow from the spring, probably nearer the fort than the spring, and closer to Big Indian Knob than the spring, or fort. It may have been on sloping ground to the left of the fort as one faces Big

The bench or flat on which the fort stood was rather unusual in one respect. While the slope was from the fort on all sides, that to the east, and south was rather steep, as noted heretofore, the slope to the north was toward Little Indian Knob and to the west to Big Indian Knob, whereas one would think the slope to be away from the hills rather than toward them.

There is an outcrop of sand stone on the high ground along the highway, and since the area is underlaid by rock, it would appear that the digging of a trench, probably two feet deep, sufficiently extensive for the construction of a stockade wall would be a kingsize job with the tools in use in that day.

An examination of the site indicates the fort could have stood a hundred feet or more closer to the spring than indicated by the pictures and distance from the river in strides, and if there was a stockade enclosing the fort and the spring, it was more than likely the fort was closer the spring than pictured, for there was no point in a large stockade area when work could be lessened by placing the fort closer to the spring.

McWhorter stated the fort stood on a slight eminence on a flat on the north side of the valley. In fact, the eminence appears to be a bench on the south slope of Little Indian Knob, the slope continuing from the eminence, or bench, to the south and west at a rather steep incline until the present railroad grade is reached, where it levels out into valley. The fort site is now entirely within the newer part of the cemetery.

All in all, as McWhorter remarked, it was not a very strategic location for the fort since an Indian bullet could reach it from the top of Little Indian Knob and Big Indian Knob would serve as a pice from which to spy. With so much level ground available one would think it would be more advisable to locate nearer the river. Where all the stone was procured remains a puzzle, but probably its availability at that spot, as well as the spring, were the deciding factors. There is no evidence of a quarry in the neighborhood. Not knowing facts or conditions, one surmise is as good as another.

Fort Marker Error

Two errors have slipped in. The Bush Fort marker erected in 1922 by the Elizabeth Lane Chapter of the D.A.R., lists the fort as erected in 1773; whereas the correct date is 1774. The John Fink marker shows he was killed by Indians February 15, 1782 whereas Withers gives the date as February 8th, just exactly one month prior to the shooting of Capt. White. With reference to White, two dates being given, Cutright stated: "The reason for the two dates is that Henry Westfall in his notes says it occurred in 1782, (same date given by Withers), while the tombstone over the grave of White in the Heavner Cemetery bears the date 1795." That error has been corrected.

Other than the Bush residence and the Bush Fort, the Nicholas Heavner house appears to be the only other residence located on the Bush farm of 200 acres. From the fort site the remains of that old building can be seen (1964) a hundred yards or so to the southeast below the railroad track, half way between the fort and the river.

During recent years the building was used as a barn. Now the roof is gone, chimney is gone, nothing but a bare skeleton remains, and it too will soon be gone, the last visible reminder of Bush Fort days; and when it is gone there will be nothing left to recall the old days other than markers in the cemetery.

A Bush Fort Relic

When John Fink and Captain William White were buried in Heavner Cemetery, then Bush Fort Cemetery, crude stone markers were placed at the graves. In later years when the present markers were being erected, workmen unearthed the hunting knife of Captain White, which was turned over to Judge J. C. McWhorter for preservation. The Judge stated to a sister of the writer that when the knife was cleaned of rust and scale, enough inscription remained to determine it was manufactured by a certain English company. An effort to date the knife brought the reply that it was very old but present records did not go that far back.

That hunting knife, now in possession of a grandson of Judge McWhorter, is the only remaining link that binds the present to the stormy days of Bush's Fort and its brave defenders.

I Jacob BUSH - b. 1756 in Hampshire County, Va. Was married in the Fall of 1782 to Margaret SWAN (SNARR) in Augusta Co., Va. She was born in 1757. Jacob evidently substituted for his brother, John in the Revolutionary War, for he enlisted in 1778 in Capt. Samuel PRINGLE's Company of Indian Spies from Fort Buckhannon which was situated at Red Rock, about 2½ miles west of Buckhannon, Upshur County, (W)Va. He served 18 months under Capt. PRINGLE and Col. Zarhartah MORGAN's regiment. Before the Rev War, he lived in Louisa Co., (W) Va. it is now his 30 yrs. and was buried in what was Gilmer Co. Margaret d. 28 Jul 1847 on Horn Creek, Gilmer Co. Jacob applied for a pension on 7 Nov 1832 and was issued to him on 18 Oct 1833, after his death. Va. Service Pension #16970. His wife filed a widow's pension #W24685 on 7 Aug 1833 and it was then issued to her in the amount of $80 yearly. Bush's Fort, later known as Jackson's Ft. stood near the site of the present Heavener Cemetery at Buckhannon and was erected by Jacob's brother, John BUSH. They were two of the earliest settlers in the Buckhannon settlement. The fort was located where Turkey Run joins the Buckhannon River in Upshur County, and was settled as early as 1769 by HACKER's and Jackson's. The fort was probably erected about 1774, and was enclosed by a stockade of some ¼ acre in extent. It burned March of 1782, was rebuilt and maintained during the Indian Wars that occurred following the Revolution.

ORIGINAL MEMBERSHIP ROLL OF BUCKHANNON RUN METHODIST CHURCH
as found in the church records by Robert B. Smith

The earliest record of present Buckhannon Run Church is of Union Chapel which had an appointment in 1834. From the appointment, the present church was organized. Rev. I. A. Barnes in THE METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH IN WEST VIRGINIA says he was unable to determine the exact date upon which the church began; however, last year (1985) the church celebrated its 150th anniversary. In 1926, the church had a membership of "76, good, substantial, intelligent, loyal Methodist Protestants and progressive citizens."

In 1985, with the help of Brooks Melton, one of the church trustees, Robert B. Smith found the following list of the church membership in early years.

Perry Green Smith

TOMBSTONE PICTURES FOR SALE

When Bud Allman redid the photo albums of tombstones in Lewis County, he had some extra pictures. He donated these to HCFD to sell to our members - proceeds to go to cemetery care. Many were sold at the gathering. Those that are left are being sold to anyone interested. Send picture number, names on marker, and your name and address to Joy Gilchrist, 22406 SR 751, West Lafayette, Oh 43084. Cost is $1.00 per picture and includes shipping and handling. Pictures will be sold on a "first come first served" basis.

Examples of preserving and making available for research both county and family records in Frederick County
(Winchester), Virginia and Berkeley County (Martinsburg), West Virginia.

While traveling through the beautiful, mountainous areas of West Virginia, Maryland, and Virginia, that so many of our ancestors traversed as they headed west, three of us--Anne Donald, Ardis Lamb, and myself, Lolita Guthrie, discovered for ourselves the information that follows and want to share it with all of you.

We welcome your comments and hope you are aware of equally valuable resources. Perhaps you are actively participating in some preservation of records project at this time.

These pages may be photocopied and shared with county commissioners, local history teachers and librarians, as well as historical and genealogical societies for their use in developing comparable preservation policies.

A photocopy of these pages may be purchased by sending a long SASE, 39¢ postage, and $1 to: Lolita Guthrie, 123 N. Grove St., Bowling Green, Ohio 43402.

Rule No. 1: Tracing your family's history is fun!

All of us use our 5- (or 7-, or 8-) generation chart as a map or outline for travelling back through years and movements of our families.

So--three of us have, for the past six years, been placing dots on the map of primarily mid-Atlantic states; then using these towns as destinations on annual 5- to 8-day trips from Bowling Green, Ohio.

We may not come back with a single additional line filled in on any of our three, quite different, ancestor charts. But we feel rewarded and enriched for having traversed some of the same geographic areas through which our ancestors migrated. We've sampled some terrific ethnic and area foods; visited arts and crafts exhibits; walked through old cemeteries; listened to the birds; lingered to enjoy the mountainous views and meadow flowers; marvelled at historical works of early pioneers on canals, mills, roads, homes, and other buildings. Not least of all, we've been amazed at the effort of so many who, cumulatively, have preserved for our use and those to come--the vital records of county courthouses, churches, and individual researchers.

The roadmap at the top of these first two pages shows the route of our fall-1986 trip (after leaving Hacker's Creek Gathering in Lewis County, West Virginia) which took us to seven courthouses in four days--hardly long enough to fix in our minds what each individual building looked like. Time did not permit us to visit more than two or three local libraries.

In two of these courthouses we stumbled upon some pages which we felt were clues to further research and deserved publication in Hacker's Creek Journal, as well as other genealogical audiences, to arouse an awareness to their existence. In addition--all who take the time to read these pages from Winchester in Frederick County, Virginia, and Martinsburg in Berkley County, West Virginia, should pursue similar searches for little-publicized collections in their own hometowns (be it anywhere from coast to coast) and start the ball rolling for preservation and availability of these so-easily-lost-forever records.

Feel free to photocopy these pages and hand to reference librarians, county commissioners, genealogical and historical societies, etc. as evidence of what others have done.

• Among the many historical facts to be obtained from this great accumulation of records, certainly not the least interesting, is the story they tell of the office itself and its travels. Begun in 1743 by Col. James Wood the first Clerk of the County, the first books are in his hand-writing. Col. Wood had been one of the early surveyors of the Shenandoah Valley and the records were at first kept in his office near his home, just west of Winchester, until 1745 when there is mention of the records being removed to the new log court house in Winchester. Just when they were removed to the first Clerk's Office, also made of logs, has not been ascertained. But it is known that it was before 1756, for in that year they were hurriedly removed to Fort Loudoun, when the news reached Winchester that hostile Indians had appeared in the Clowser and Rosenberger settlements and along the Little North Mountain. After some time the records were again returned to the Clerk's Office. This old log office was frequently complained of as inadequate, and in 1780 a stone building with brick floors and vaulted roof was built. During the erection of this building the records were stored in the Court house. This stone Clerk's Office proved too damp for the effective preservation of the records and in 1832 the present, and third Clerk's Office was built, and again for a time the records were in the Court house.

During the War Between the States the entire contents of the office were carefully placed in stout boxes made for the purpose and hauled by teams to a farm house near Luray, and hidden. This appears to have been done in 1861, and they remained there for about a year and then returned to Winchester and were stored in the vault of the old Bank of Winchester. In 1864 they were again taken to Page County and were not brought back until 1866. Since that time they have made three more trips to the court house and a portion of them were for a while in the City Hall, at the various times improvements and additions to the Clerk's Office have been made.

It is a high tribute to the Clerks and other County officials that during the one hundred and ninety-eight years of their history, their journeys and removals both in time of peace and amid the commotions of three major wars, that only three books are known to have been lost. The old Clerk, T. K. Cartmell, states that they were lost during the War Between the States. Certainly they have never been in the Office during the memory of persons now living. The missing books were:

Superior Court Deed Book No. 1

Superior Court Will Book No. 3 (copy not clear for _)

County Court Order Book 1856 - 1862.

The loss of these books has in a large measure been repaired through the efforts of Mr. Julian W. Baker, the present Clerk of the County, who for a considerable period of years has gleaned from concomitant records information which largely replaces the lost books.

The records may be described as consisting of these general classifications:

(1) Documentary (2) Books of Record.

The documentary records are composed chiefly of the suit papers filed in the thousands of suits which have been litigated in the various Courts of Frederick County since the first Court convened November 11, 1743, almost two hundred years ago. These papers were formerly stored in the two upstairs rooms of the old Clerk's Office in wooden cases and when packed for removal to the new office, one hundred and fifty-six bushel baskets were required to contain them. These papers have now been filed, according to years and according to the court in which they belonged, in one hundred and ninety steel transfer cases in vertical stacks, located on the balcony. New labels and new tape were provided only for the bundles needing them, and this required fifty quires of paper and one thousand three hundred and fifty yards of tape.

These documents are now for the first time, clean, protected and accessible for reference. While filing these papers, the commissions and qualifications of all county officials and officers, down to this day, that I was able to find, were segregated and the commissions signed by the various Governors of Virginia, making an interesting and valuable collection.

The remainder of the documentary records consist of wills, original deeds, vouchers, papers relating to roads, petitions, licenses of all kinds and a great mass of miscellany. These have all been placed in steel document files on the balcony arranged according to years and to the Courts to which they belonged, and for the first time in the history of the County, the marriage records which begin in 1772, are all together and accessible.

The officials of Frederick County may now enjoy the satisfaction of knowing that with the recent enlargement and improvement of the Clerk's Office and the additional filing equipment, the documentary records are now in better condition for their preservation and accessibility than has ever been the case in the long history of the County.

The other general classification - the books of record - consists of one hundred and eighty-four deed books, fifty-nine will books, and the order and minute books of the various Courts; rule books, fee books, execution books, bond books, and the miscellaneous books required by law to the large total of one thousand one hundred and seven. All of these books were cleaned by vacuum process, and the older and less used were stored on the balcony in steel cabinets provided with doors and locks. A description of the contents of each has been affixed to the inside of the cabinet doors. Because of the over-crowded condition of the old office, many of these books had been piled on the floors of the upstairs rooms and were in grave jeopardy.

In these locked cabinets have also been placed the more valuable original wills, deeds, marriage bonds and other papers of great age and historical value. These papers were flat filed and securely wrapped to protect them from light and dust.

In explanation of the presence of this large mass of records in the Frederick County Clerk's Office, it should be stated that the old original Frederick County had but three boundaries, viz: the Blue Ridge Mountains on the east, the Potomac River on the north, the Fairfax Line (present Shenandoah-Rockingham line) with projections on both ends, on the south and extended to the westward indefinitely. For many years all the conveyances of real estate, all of the wills and estate accounts of this vast area were recorded in our Clerk's Office and nearly all of the litigation of the inhabitants took place in the Frederick County Court. After the Revolution and as the country became more thickly settled, various appellate courts were established by the Commonwealth of Virginia, having jurisdiction in this section and which sat in Winchester and kept their records in the Frederick County Clerk's Office. Therefore, our Clerk's Office contains the records of the following Courts:

The County Court 1743 to 1904

The Superior Court of Chancery 1801 to 1831

The District Superior Court for the Winchester District 1788 to 1809

The Circuit Superior Court from 1809 to 1853

The present Circuit Court from 1853 and still in existence

The Office also contains the records of the Board of Supervisors from 1869 to the present day.

All of these papers are required by law, I am informed, to be kept, and though it may seem an unfair burden and a sort of inherited obligation, nevertheless it is a burden that has been borne and an obligation that has been met in a very fine way by the present Board of Supervisors by the recent enlargement of the office and the excellent new filing equipment installed.

HISTORIC RECORD NO. 2, BERKELEY COUNTY, W.VA.

NOTES CONCERNING THE ADDITION OF HISTORIC RECORDS 2 THROUGH 17 TO THE BERKELEY COUNTY COMMISSION'S COLLECTION. (This will be given in some detail so as to present what we regard as the growth of a significant archival strategy that could prove useful in other counties as one way to help cope with the local history record problem.)

When Mrs. Bergen moved to Winchester to live with her niece, Nancy Kate Latimer (Mrs. W. Bruce Porterfield, 342 Fox Drive), because of the decline in her health, she gave a number of her papers and rolls to Francis Silver for the Berkeley County Historical Society. These have now been xeroxed into Historic Records 15, 16, and 17. The originals of these are currently with the Historical Society Archives. ....

After Mrs. Bergen died, 1 Aug 1973 (obituary, Mtbg. Journal, 8/2/1973, page 2; also in HR-1 page ), frequent discussions were held between members of the staff of the county clerk's office regarding a suitable memorial for her. Finally it was felt that something involving her records would be most suitable. Virginia L. Kershner began collecting a fund for a memorial. Helen L. Vickers kept insisting that the papers should be put in "deed books." Jean S. Oliver and Luvina M. Frye kept emphasizing the need to take some action before something happened to the papers and they were lost. John W. Small, Jr., the county clerk, said his office would be willing to house the records and encouraged the project.

The first thinking was that if we obtained the records, they would be in a filing cabinet, but the question of keeping such a collection in order and no papers disappearing was a substantial one. A few weeks after Mrs. Bergen's death, Wm. B. Small and F. Silver stopped to pay their respects at Nancy Kate's home. The question of the papers came up and Nancy Kate took Bill and Frank down in the basement to see the papers so that they could get some idea of what was involved. Nancy Kate said both she and her husband thought that the papers should be returned to Berkeley County, since that is what they concerned. At first they were willing to have the files taken to the county clerk's office. After re-reading Mrs. Bergen's will, they realized that she wanted Nancy Kate to keep the papers. Finally it was decided that the 2 file drawers of family folders and some other items, chiefly indexes, would be loaned for xeroxing into books and then returned to Winchester, so as to comply with the will, and yet make the papers available in Berkeley County. The 2 file drawers contained 24 linear inches each, or 48" total. Much of the contents were on tissue carbons, typed on both sides, averaging 160 pages per inch, or nearly 8,000 pages for the 48". The files were screened and personal items removed by Mr. & Mrs. Porterfield.

The task of xeroxing the books had 4 components: (1) John W. Small, Jr. agreed that the county clerk's office would house the completed books; (2) Wm. B. Small and F. Silver agreed to go get the papers and xerox them into record books without compensation; (3) The County Commission agreed to absorb the xerox charge, estimated at around $500.00; (4) The Commission said their budget would not permit them to absorb the cost of the books, estimated at $1,500.00 to $1,600.00. Wm. B. Small and F. Silver agreed to try to raise funds by popular subscription to pay for purchase of the books. Later, on motion of John Wright, approved by Edmond S. Williams and Robert L. Burkhart, the court authorized the expenditure of $1,300.00 from the contingency fund for books, although this does not appear in the minutes, having been inadvertently omitted from minute book 20 page 363, following the letter.

There are items in Minute Books 20, page 363 and Book 21 pages 88 and 112 that apply to the Bergen Papers. The sixteen books cost about $1200.00. The reason being that after the first 3 had been purchased it was discovered by talking to Casto & Harris that having the book headings printed on only 1 side cost $20.00 per book. To have them printed on both sides would have cost $40.00 per book, so it was decided to stamp the books instead and save this cash outlay. The xeroxing was actually begun on the 2nd of August 1974, and completed on the 25th of June 1975. Organizing, returning records to Winchester, stamping pages, and family folder indexing was completed about a month later on 29 July 1975. The total hours for F. Silver were 356.41 which at $6.00 per hour comes to $2,138.46. Wm. B. Small's hours were 280.26, which at $4.00 per hour comes to $1,121.04, or a total labor contribution of 3,259.50 for both. The forbearance and assistance of Eileen M. Myers and Eloise B. Knaggs of the xerox room of the county clerk's office during the prolonged and difficult xeroxing period is gratefully acknowledged. A newspaper announcement appears on page 20 of the April 8, 1974 Martinsburg Journal. Other mention appears in newspaper accounts of Historical Society Meetings.

The funds raised by public subscription through announcement at the Historical Society meetings and in the Martinsburg Journal and by the County Clerk's office are as follows:

Perhaps at least as important as the actual money contributed was the show of support and approval of this project. This gave encouragement to those involved in the program and to the county officials when doubts arose as to the wisdom of this new venture. The other moral support came from those who came in to use the papers and expressed such gratitude for their availability.

As we worked on this project, we came to consider 3 things as highly significant archivally in relation to local history:

1. The establishment of a series of Historic Record Books to preserve in an archival fashion records that would ordinarily not be well kept. Some of the elements of good archival practice are, good linen record paper, durably bound books, serially numbered, page numbered, indexed, looseleaf for xeroxing, microfilmed for security purposes and for availability at other archives. Mrs. Bergen started this series with the approval and funding of the county court and Eugene Dunham, the county clerk at that time, and so broke the ground for this endeavor. The idea of putting her records in later books of this series was a logical extension of what she began. The idea was originated by Helen L. Vickers, chief deputy county clerk. This helped develop the concept of a special series of local history books.
2. The second breakthrough is the demonstration of how a cooperative effort between government bodies (county commission, county clerk's office, county surveyor's office), civic organizations (Historical Society and Adam Stephen society helped promote the fund drive), media (newspaper and radio station), public spirited citizens (Mrs. Bergen, Mr. and Mrs. Porterfield, and contributors) and volunteer effort all combined to make a splendid addition to preservation and organization of local historical records.
3. The necessity for timely, appropriate, imaginative action so that copies of local records can be made available locally for local scholars to use, and not just available somewhere else, perhaps hundreds of miles away, or not available at all.

The following news release appeared in the Martinsburg Journal, 4/8/1974, page 20

CHRISTINE BERGEN MEMORIAL FUND ESTABLISHED

John W. Small, Jr., County Clerk of Berkeley County, announces that Mrs. Russell (Christine) Bergen's genealogical papers have been loaned to the County for duplication into record books, by their owner, her niece, Mrs. W. Bruce Porterfield of 342 Fox Drive, Winchester, Va. (formerly Nancy Kate Latimer of this city)

The archival plan is to xerox the papers into some 15 or 16 record books, similar to those used for recording deeds. The books will add on to the series begun a number of years ago by Mrs. Bergen, titled, "Miscellaneous Historical Records No. 1." It has been decided to shorten the title of subsequent books, for easier reference to "Historic Record No. 2, 3, etc., Berkeley County, West Virginia. Christine Bergen Papers."

It is felt that this will provide a most suitable memorial for the many years of dedicated service that Mrs. Bergen gave to collecting and organizing the genealogical history of this county.

After the books have been completed, they are to be microfilmed and a copy put in a storage vault and one given to the Martinsburg-Berkeley County Public Library.

The County Court will absorb the $500.00 estimated for Xerox rental. Labor for xeroxing and microfilming will be donated. Employees of the County Clerk's office have raised a small fund to buy microfilm. The problem of buying the record books still remains, estimated at about $1,600.00. The County Court's budget has already been fully committed for the forthcoming year, so an account titled "Christine Bergen Memorial Fund," has been opened at the M & F Bank to receive contributions to buy the record books. Contributions to this fund are invited to make their contribution to Wm. B. Small or Frank Silver at the Court House. The names of individuals or organizations making contributions will be inscribed in the introduction to the series in the beginning of the first book of the series.

Similar announcements were made over the radio at about the same time. The plan was also presented at various Historical Society meetings and usually appeared in the newspaper in the write up of the society meetings.

IN RE: LETTER FROM COUNTY SURVEYOR

3 May 1974

The Honorable Court of Berkeley County
Berkeley County Court House
Martinsburg, W. Va.

Gentlemen:

The County has been the recipient of the generosity and good judgement of Mrs. Christine Bergen's heir, Mrs. Bruce Porterfield (Nancy Kate Latimer) in making her files of genealogical records available to the Court House for copying.

These records are, for the most part, typewritten and rather well organized alphabetically by family folders. They represent several decades of intense activity on the part of this highly knowledgeable and nationally known and respected genealogist, in our court house records, studying and documenting Berkeley County families.

In addition to their interest to genealogists, these records will provide information that is vital to surveyors, attorneys, and property owners in making boundary record studies and title searches. Where intestate inheritance or inheritance by will occurs, genealogical evidence often becomes crucial in establishing solid chains of title and boundary. For example, in my current work for property owners in the Harlan Spring area, her genealogical files of the Harlan family and of Lewis Burwell provided information essential to making a sound survey that will hold up in court. Such records are also important for certain types of medical research such as genetic research and epidemiology.

The managers of the archival library in the County Clerk's Office have suggested that we xerox her papers into books similar to the half size deed books now in current use. This would provide a book and page number for easy referencing and documentation. We propose to extend the series begun by her, with Court approval, some years ago. The books will be titled, "Historic Record. No. 2, 3, 4, etc. Christine Bergen Papers."

After xeroxing, the books can be microfilmed and copies of the film furnished to other repositories such as our own public library.

These papers will provide a wonderful basic tool for scholars of our county records, both from within and from outside the county. It will also serve as the perfect memorial for this remarkable woman.

Respectfully,

Francis Silver, 5th
Surveyor of Lands of Berkeley County

IN RE: HISTORICAL RECORDS

Mr. Frank Silver appeared before the Court this morning. Mr. Silver showed the Court one of the recently completed books of historical records. Mr. Silver stated that he had $421.81 and the Court told him to continue to raise these donations. The Court also states that they felt the books should be made available for public use as soon as possible.
